

Mark Fitzpatrick
Teaching Professional
Glendenning Golf
St. John's, NL

Mark has been involved in organized sports since the age of 5. Whether recreational or competitive, sport has always been his passion. At age 16 Mark discovered golf and immediately fell in love with the game. The following year his skill secured him a place on his High School golf team.

In the fall of 2004, at the age of 22, he moved to Prince Edward Island and enrolled in the Golf Club Management Program and the Professional Golf Management Program at Holland College. It was there that he developed the skills and knowledge required to start a career in golf. He also had the opportunity to work on the PGA Tour, caddying and operating Shot Link, the GPS technology used on most golf television broadcasts.

As part of his formal education, Mark received golf instruction by some of the best CPGA Professionals in the country. These sessions inspired him to become an instructor and share his knowledge with others.

Upon graduation Mark joined the Callaway Performance Center in PEI where he focused on teaching Junior Golf. In the spring of 2009 he returned to St. John's to take a position as a Teaching Professional at Glendenning. He currently works in the Pro Shop, oversees the Junior Program and teaches golf.
